

Warren Bloom began his legal career with Kay Scholer in New York City in the mid-1980s specializing in the representation of lending institutions in leveraged buyouts and "going private" transactions. Upon his relocation to Florida in late 1988, Mr. Bloom began to specialize in the Public Finance area with a sub-specialty in the representation of creditor entities in such transactions (e.g., indenture trustees, bondholders, bond purchasers, and credit enhancers). Since that time, Mr. Bloom has represented municipal security credit holders in both new and existing distressed transactions in more than half of the United States.

Mr. Bloom's experience includes active roles in bankruptcies, foreclosures and consensual restructurings of municipal transactions both in Florida and throughout the nation. Mr. Bloom's practice continues to include a substantial amount of underwriters' counsel, bond counsel, purchaser's counsel and credit enhancers' counsel roles on new transactions.

Mr. Bloom's education includes, J.D., with honors from University of Miami School of Law, 1986 and a B.A., with honors in Chemistry from Duke University, 1981.
