

Kenneth S. Dreifus is licensed as a Real Estate Broker in New York State, where his so-called day job entails being principal of Dreifus Realty-Funding, LLC, a firm specializing in the structuring and placement of commercial real estate financing transactions. In addition, Mr. Dreifus is also the Deputy Chair of the Department of Business and Accounting at Touro College, where he supervises the staffing and administration of courses on 11 campuses in the New York Metropolitan area, and enjoys teaching several sections per semester in Economics and Finance. He also serves as president of the Touro's chapter of Sigma Beta Delta, an international business honor society.

Mr. Dreifus holds an MBA in Finance from the State University of New York at Buffalo, and completed his course work just short of the doctoral dissertation. He was trained as a credit analyst and workout specialist at Bankers Trust Company, was a commercial lender for a small NYC commercial bank, and US representative for a foreign banking entity. Since becoming a commercial mortgage broker in 1987, he has been the author or co-author of 20 articles that have appeared in real estate or real estate financing trade journals, and presented at many meetings of banking and real estate professionals. Mr. Dreifus is married, has four sons, many grandchildren, and is multi-lingual. His hobbies include reading and Talmudic studies.
